

REDACTED
EXHIBIT 6

3:48

5G

(Bloomberg Law) — The former chairman and CEO of now-defunct Hotel & Motelworld Andrew B. Ives, the parent of Motelworld USA, was arrested in New York on Wednesday after Plaintiff filed his suit yesterday against Balfour Beatty. Therefore the investigation into what was communicated on the 11th of November 2019, which has yet to begin on the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida on September 3, is before his initial arrest, he was released on a $1 million bond with special conditions. Among other things, Ivensworld was required to stay in the jurisdiction of the Southern Court of Florida, but failed to do so when he traveled to Atlanta in July, according to court documents. A probation officer in the Northern District of New York attempted to visit Ivensworld in Atlanta, but when he arrived, one of Balfour Beatty's employees advised him that he was in Florida. When he reached her by video call the following day, he was outside of a hotel in Miami. The probation officer initially reprimanded him and he provided documentation of the purpose of the travel. But as of July 28—the date of the probation violation charge—Balfour Beatty provided by Probation said that Ivensworld failed to notify his parole officer that he had had contact with law enforcement on May 1. The contact arose from "unrelated incidents" between Balfour Beatty and an individual named Mario Wym, which resulted in temporary protection orders being issued against both parties, Probation said. Although Balfour Beatty had not yet reported the contact, Balfour Beatty said he reviewed his records and was sure that he hadn't.

Waiver Request

Although a probation officer in Miami recommended modifying Ivensworld's bond to include a search (and then requiring him to seek authorization from Prob of Services in advance of any and all travel), Judge Robert W. Stark Jr. instead had Ivensworld serve a warrant notice to Balfour Beatty and its co-defendant, Motelworld's former CEO, Mitchell Lowe, as well as releasing investors about Motel and Motelworld's business operations in order to insure the company's stock value during other things. As a result and Lowe allegedly claimed that Motelworld's "unlawful" subscription plan, was a marketable business strategy when they knew it was a temporary plan hoping to gain more subscribers. When the number of users and subscriber purchased items decline as expected, they allegedly caused Motelworld employees to take measures to prevent certain individuals from taking advantage of the supposedly temporary subscription. They also allegedly took steps to reduce the value of Motelworld's stock price. For purposes of the court proceedings in the Northern District of New York, Balfour Beatty has been appointed a federal public defender, but today's appearance and removal proceeding is not required for Motelworld to be represented in its pending criminal case by Motelworld's legal team. Balfour Beatty filed a motion to dismiss the case in United States v. Balfour Beatty, U.S. Dist. No. 22-cv-00400, request for petition and was denied by Judge

Wym he got a restraining order issued on me and I was pissed so I got one on him

Ohh

So he called the cops on himself?

Wym he got a restraining order issued on me and I was pissed so I got one on him

After I was served mine

Damn.

How did they find out he was travelling

against his bond rules

Message...

1:49

5G

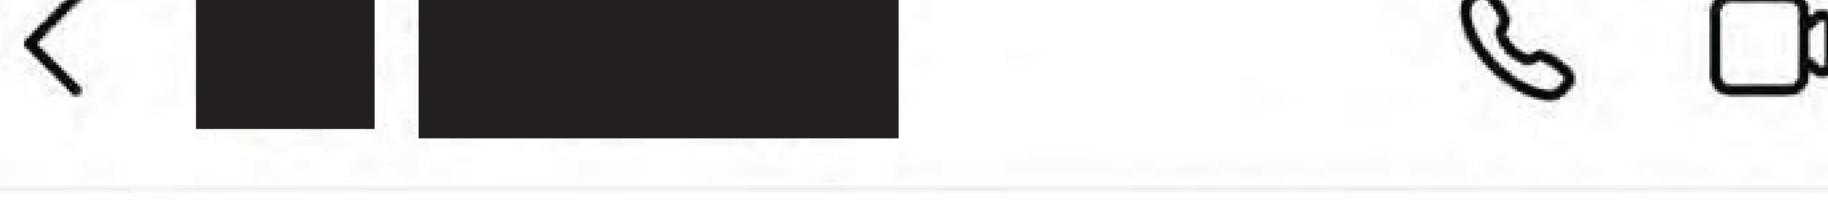

Lorne Ross

@LorneRoss3

This all started because Ted got a restraining order on [REDACTED] ... Soon as it was over, [REDACTED] retaliated with one. 😂 can't make this shit up

3:48

5G

(Bloomberg Law) — The former chairman and CEO of now-bankrupt Maserati America Inc., the parent of Maserati USA, Inc., was indicted in New York on Wednesday after prosecutors said he violated a 2022 restraining order with a trip to Venezuela, where U.S. District Court Judge Carter Southern District of New York, U.S. Marshals and FBI agents said he was arrested on Wednesday morning. The arrest came after he was found to have violated his bond conditions, among other things. Karmowski was required to notify his probation officer of his whereabouts and travels, but failed to do so when he traveled to Mexico City, according to court documents. A probation officer in the Southern District of New York attempted to visit Karmowski's Quito, Ecuador residence, but when he arrived, one of Karmowski's employees advised him that the house in Ecuador, which he received from his wife, had been sold the following day. The new owners of a house in Miami, the probation officer, normally represented him and he requested documentation to put off the travel, but was denied. The date of the probation officer's visit was not provided. The court papers provided any. Prosecutors said that Karmowski failed in notifying probation officer that he had been contacted by law enforcement on May 10, the last day of his 18-month sentence. In addition, "Between February and an individual named Massa Mays, which resulted in temporary protection orders being issued against both parties, an injunction seek, although Karmowski said he had in fact reported the contact, but the probation officer said she received no records and was sure that he had not."

Comment Request:
Although probation officer on Mays' injunction, notifying Karmowski's bonds to include a specific location, he failed to do so, according to the court documents. In addition, on May 10, an arrest, Judge Robert H. Scholl, Jr., allowed him to increase salary a day earlier than required. Karmowski and his co-defendant, Maserati's former CEO, Mitchell Lauer, are accused of misleading investors about Maserati and Maserati's business operations in order to inflate the Company's stock price. Among other things, Karmowski and Lauer allegedly claimed that Maserati's "turnaround" subscription plan was a sustainable business strategy when they knew it was a temporary marketing ploy to grow revenue. When the number of sales each quarter grew faster than expected, they allegedly directed Maserati employees to increase the price of the plan. They also allegedly misrepresented the cause of non-compliance. Karmowski has been appointed a federal public defender. His initial appearance and initial proceedings is scheduled for Friday. He is represented at his pending criminal case by LeClair Winnall LLP and Bill Hollister Hayes PLLC. The case is United States v. Karmowski, 22-cv-00030 (NGG) (Court and patent and warrant 07/23).

It didn't say he came to me to call cops

Ohh

So he called the cops on himself?

Wym he got a restraining order issued on me and I was pissed so I got one on him

After I was served mine

Damn.

How did they find out he was travelling

against his bond rules

Message...

11:16 PM · 8/6/23 from Earth · 512 Views

Post your reply

No ur not im on Teds side

You got a restraining order on him last week

Teds my bro also

1:09 PM

Lol no he's not

And no

While ago my restraining order only lasted a month bc I didn't go to court so it droped

It's what my lawyer wanted me to don

The family court judge was a bitch

So lawyer told me to let it drop so it doesn't go to family court

His lasts till November 16th im pissed

Ohh. You guys can't hang out

Message...

...

5:55 PM

Damnnnn Ted finally reached out to me.

I'm back in Syracuse in a couple weeks.. what would you think about grabbing a couple drinks, see where the night takes us and stuff.

Lorne Ross @LorneRoss3 · 48m

...

1

2

35

Post your reply

10:18

LTE

Lol no he's not

And no

While ago my restraining order only lasted a month bc I didn't go to court so it droped

It's what my lawyer wanted me to don

The family court judge was a bitch

So lawyer told me to let it drop so it doesn't go to family court

His lasts till November 16th im pissed

1

1

7

462

1

JJ Pampit @c16_123 · 1h

Can't make this shit up...amazing.

2

1

1

43

1

Lorne Ross ✅ @LorneRoss3 · 59m

Now we are meeting in Seattle to chat

2

1

1

56

1

JJ Pampit @c16_123 · 58m

1

1

1

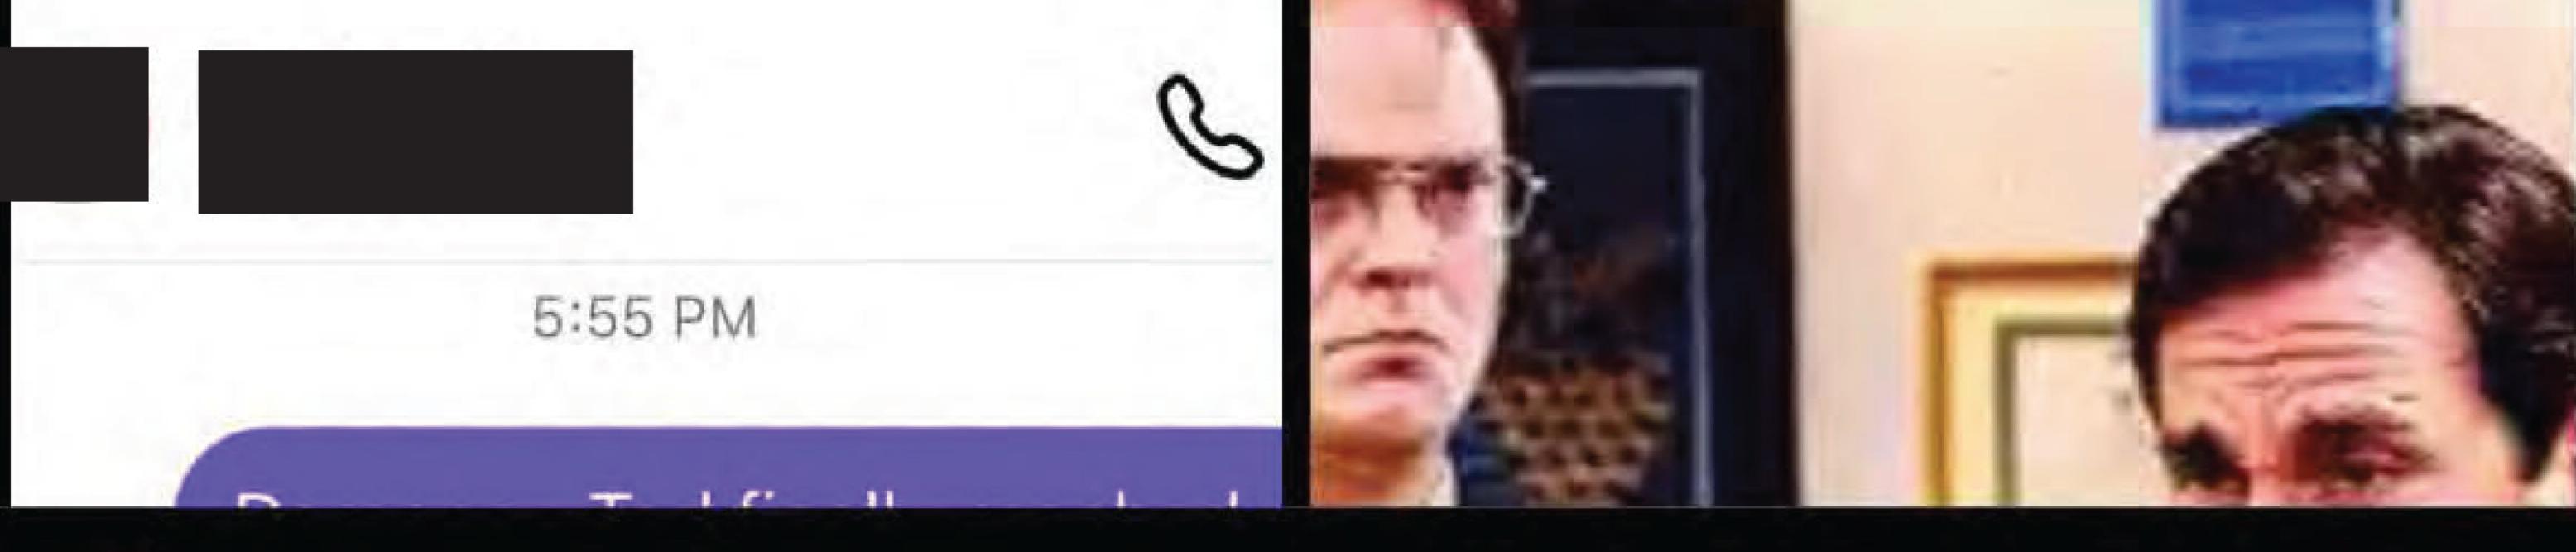

44

1

Lorne Ross ✅

@LorneRoss3

X

...

<

SAT 12:39 PM

My ex bf went to jail too for assault in 2029

2020*

No ted and [REDACTED] weren't married

Jeez least Teds it's white collar crime are you with Ted still? Or he with [REDACTED]?

SAT 6:21 PM

Lol

I better start invoicing u for our conversations

?

Why lol

O

Im bill by the ho

3 at's y

90

Post your reply

10:22

••• LTE

Lorne Ross  @LorneRoss3 · 4h

This correct. [REDACTED] lives here with his family members. Hes getting mad at me..

The family court judge was a bitch

So lawyer told me to let it drop so it doesn't go to family court

His lasts till November 16th im pissed

Ohh. So you guys can't hang out

I'm not a shareholder but what's up with that company he has Vinco or whatever they call it

Lonomitf doesn't work anymore i don't even think

Ur not a shareholder but I see ur mouth runs like a ducks ass on Twitter but doesn't surprise me bc ur gay

Gav ppl tend to have big mouth

3

1

7

244

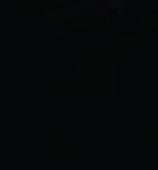

↑

Pugzy

@PugzRTough

[REDACTED] is being mean, he must have not gotten satisfied lately.

6:13 PM · 8/7/23 from Earth · 278 Views

Post your reply